

2012 Competent Person Training

Spider is offering Competent Person Training Classes to train or recertify workers that you have designated competent persons under OSHA 1926.450(b)

What will the program do for me?

- Meet the standards set forth by OSHA 1926.450(b) for training of a competent person
- Meet the standards set forth by OSHA 1926.503(a) (1) by providing a training program on fall hazards; enabling employees to recognize the hazards of falling and procedures to be followed in order to minimize these hazards
- Allow you as the employer to deem an individual competent to use suspended scaffolding equipment
- Demonstrate in-depth knowledge of safe assembly and operational practices for Spider equipment
- Receive certificate of proof of ongoing safety training and compliance with OSHA codes that is suitable to show your insurance company, OSHA, and general contractors

Benefits:

- Makes workers more productive
- Improves worker safety awareness
- Helps maintain OSHA compliance
- Helps control accident related costs
- Helps prevent damage to structures from misused equipment
- Saves downtime due to operator errors

Spider offers two unique courses: Commercial and Industrial.

Commercial:

- For those who primarily work on office or residential buildings.
- Hands-on, real life examples, practical solutions.
- Covers hazard assessment and mitigation, codes, and safety procedures to productively access low to high-rise urban work.

Industrial:

- For those who work on power, oil & gas, bridges, dams, stadiums and other non-building structures.
- Hands-on, real life examples, practical solutions spanning additional content for welding, confined space, rescue and preplanning.
- Covers hazard assessment and mitigation, codes, and safety procedures specific to remote and complex work environments.

 Bring your current safety gear to class for a hands-on Competent Person inspection of the equipment.
